

Mayfield Clinic

CINCINNATI -- The Mayfield Clinic is one of the world's largest neurosurgical groups and is recognized as one of the nation's leading physician organizations for clinical care, education, and research of the spine and brain. Supported by 20 neurosurgeons, five neurointensivists, an interventional radiologist, and a pain specialist, the Clinic treats 20,000 patients from 35 states and 13 countries in a typical year.

Mayfield's neurosurgeons perform nearly 14,000 procedures annually in virtually every aspect of neurosurgery. Through an expedited treatment process known as Priority Consult, Mayfield's spine specialists review case histories of nearly 550 new patients each month. Nearly 80 percent of these patients are able to recover without surgery.

Mayfield's physicians have pioneered surgical procedures and instrumentation that have revolutionized the medical art of neurosurgery for brain tumors and neurovascular diseases and disorders. They are widely published in the most prestigious medical journals, and they lecture frequently to colleagues throughout the world. Each February they team up with the Cleveland Clinic, the Mayo Clinic, and the Methodist Neurological Institute at the annual Winter Clinics symposium in Snowmass, Colo., to share new discoveries and surgical techniques with the world's brain and spine specialists.

Mayfield is affiliated with the University of Cincinnati (UC) Department of Neurosurgery and The Neuroscience Institute, a center of excellence located at UC and University Hospital. A majority of Mayfield's physicians are on the faculty at UC.

Mayfield has 11 office locations in the Greater Cincinnati-Northern Kentucky area and employs more than 150 people.

The Mayfield Clinic was established in 1937 by Frank H. Mayfield, MD.
